PEACE BETWEEN JUDAISM AND CHRISTIANITY

By Rabbi Ferdinand M. Isserman

The splendid reception which greeted the exchange of pulpits of the Rabbi of Holy Blossom Synagogue and the minister of the Carlton Street United Church indicates that the masses of men are not desirous of perpetuating the prejudices and animosities of the past. Thousands of people were enabled to hear a Jewish service when the Sunday morning services were broadcast from the Holy Blossom Synagogue. These were followed by a stirring and beautiful appeal by a Christian minister for the end of prejudice and ill-will. We shall long remember the Rev. E. Crossley Hunter's prayer to God to forgive Christians for their cruelty to Jews throughout the centuries. He expressed what seemed to us the finest of Christian spirit. We believe that he had the sympathy of the masses of Christians, and judging by the hundreds who were turned away from Carlton Street United Church on Sunday evening, it was evident that to many Torontonians the presence of a rabbi loyal to Judaism in a Christian pulpit had its appeal. Both services emphasized the fellowship which should prevail between teachers of religion and their disciples.

It behooves all of us to see how we can make permanent and enduring the spirit of that day. Good-will cannot come by wishing but by willing. One of the greatest of obstacles is ignorance, ignorance on the part of the Christian of Judaism and the Jew, and ignorance on the part of the Jew of Christianity and the Christian. As long as there exist myths about Jews in the minds of Christians, and myths about Christians in the minds of Jews, real friendship between the two will not be possible. Education can help to create lasting good-will. A better understanding can come when Jews and Christians will realize that both faiths are beautiful, can prove inspiring, and have produced heroic spirits, and that both Judaism and Christianity have merited their place in the sun.

THE ORDINATION OF WOMEN

The United Church of Canada is at the present time concerned with the problem of the ordination of women. It is interesting to note that the same problem presented itself to the Hebrew Union College a few years ago. One of the daughters of a famous professor had been taking the rabbinical course, and when she reached the higher grades where her ordination had to be considered, the board of governors of the college referred the matter to the Conference of Rabbis, and asked for their opinion. Professor Lauterbach, of the Hebrew Union College, read a paper at a rabbinical conference, showing that the admission of women to the rabbinate was against all Talmudic decisions. The discussion following his paper was a heated one, and to our great surprise and pleasure (it being our first conference) the rabbis championed the cause of women. Speaker after speaker arose, agreed with what Professor Lauterbach had brought out in his paper, but insisted that modern Judaism need not be bound by practices and decisions of an age which could not have

THE MONTREAL COMMUNITY'S OPPORTUNITY

The decision of the Privy Council in reference to the school question in Quebec province has placed the Montreal Jewish community in a very difficult position.

Though the full text of the judgment is not yet at hand, it is known that the effect is to construe the term "protestant" as relating to the school system in the narrowest sectarian sense. There are two panels provided for: Catholic and Protestant. It is now definitely decided that the term "Protestant" does not mean the non-Catholic residue. It means only the adherents of the Protestant Christian denominations.

The Jewish population does not fall under either category. In Montreal the Jewish taxes are allocated to the Protestant school board, and in return Jewish children are accommodated in Protestant schools. The Jewish community tried to take the position that it should have some representation on the administrative board and should be entitled to privileges as of right not as a matter of gratuity. Now it is established that the Jews may contribute their taxes to the Protestant panel and send their children to the schools as guests on sufferance—take what they are given and be thankful for small mercies.

Is the Jewish population to submit to the humiliating arrangement that now exists—rendered more humiliating by the legal definition which it has received from the highest judicial tribunal in the Empire? Submission means countenancing a condition which is repugnant to English political thought—the condition of "taxation without representation." Is it to take up the challenge and proceed with the organization of a new panel and school system, neither Catholic nor Protestant, but Jewish? This would involve no end of difficulty.

What strikes us as piquant in the situation is the circumstance that perhaps for the first time in America a major Jewish community will be forced to take into account its status as a group and make large political and economic commitments on matters of education and culture.

The tendency of Jewish life in America, as we know, is to drift along convenient routes and fall in line with the prevailing biases. Concerted Jewish action has been possible only in spheres of philanthropy where no deep issues are ever at stake. In the background of the contemporary scene there is a rich Jewish life full of creative activity. Before us we see an aimless and meaningless rambling about; little cohesiveness; no purposive initiative; no historically processive action.

And now the Montreal community is rudely shaken out of a comfortable groove which, like other communities, it is anxious to enjoy in peace. And it has to think, and wax indignant, and scheme, and make plans for future contingencies, and spend vast sums of money, and make all sorts of decisions. It is confronted by a crisis.

May we say that the Montreal community can account itself fortunate to have this ordeal thrust upon it? It has a chance to develop character and strength as a group and serve as an example of communal capacity for constructive effort.

UNREST IN RUMANIAN UNIVERSITIES CONTINUES

In spite of the denials of the Rumanian Minister to Washington, reports of renewed excesses upon Jewish students in Bucarest and other Rumanian cities continue to come in. Several Jewish students at the medical college of the Bucarest University have been brutally beaten. During the trial of the six students who participated in the Oradeamare riots, which was recently held at Jassy, the city had to be closely guarded by mounted Cavalry patrols after the street excesses that took place there a day before, when many Jews were injured.

The Jews of Cluj escaped two ritual blood accusations within a few days. The first was immediately after the Trasylvania riots, when the Jews were accused of having murdered a Christian student who had been found to possess several ritual objects stolen from a synagogue. The student was later found. Later the newspapers brought another charge that the Rabbis of the town murdered an eleven-years' old school boy, who was missing. The Government made a thorough investigation and the boy was found in a neighbouring village.

The police prefects who were suspended because of their negligence in preventing the riots appealed to the Ministry of the Interior for a reconsideration of their cases. The leaders of the Jewish community in Clausenburg were requested to sign a paper exonerating the officials from any guilt in connection with the disorders, but they refused to sign it. Four persons are held in the military fortress at Cluj on the charge of inciting the students to riot and disorder and of being morally responsible for the excesses.

Miss Maxa Nordau who was to deliver a lecture in Bucarest was not permitted to do so by the Government authorities, on the ground that this might lead to disorders and excesses. All students' meetings will henceforth be prohibited by the Government and the various university authorities were notified not to issue any permits for such meetings.

COMMENTARIES

By Rabbi Harry J. Stern, of Montreal
Associate Contributing Editor

THE GRAND OLD MAN OF AMERICAN ISRAEL

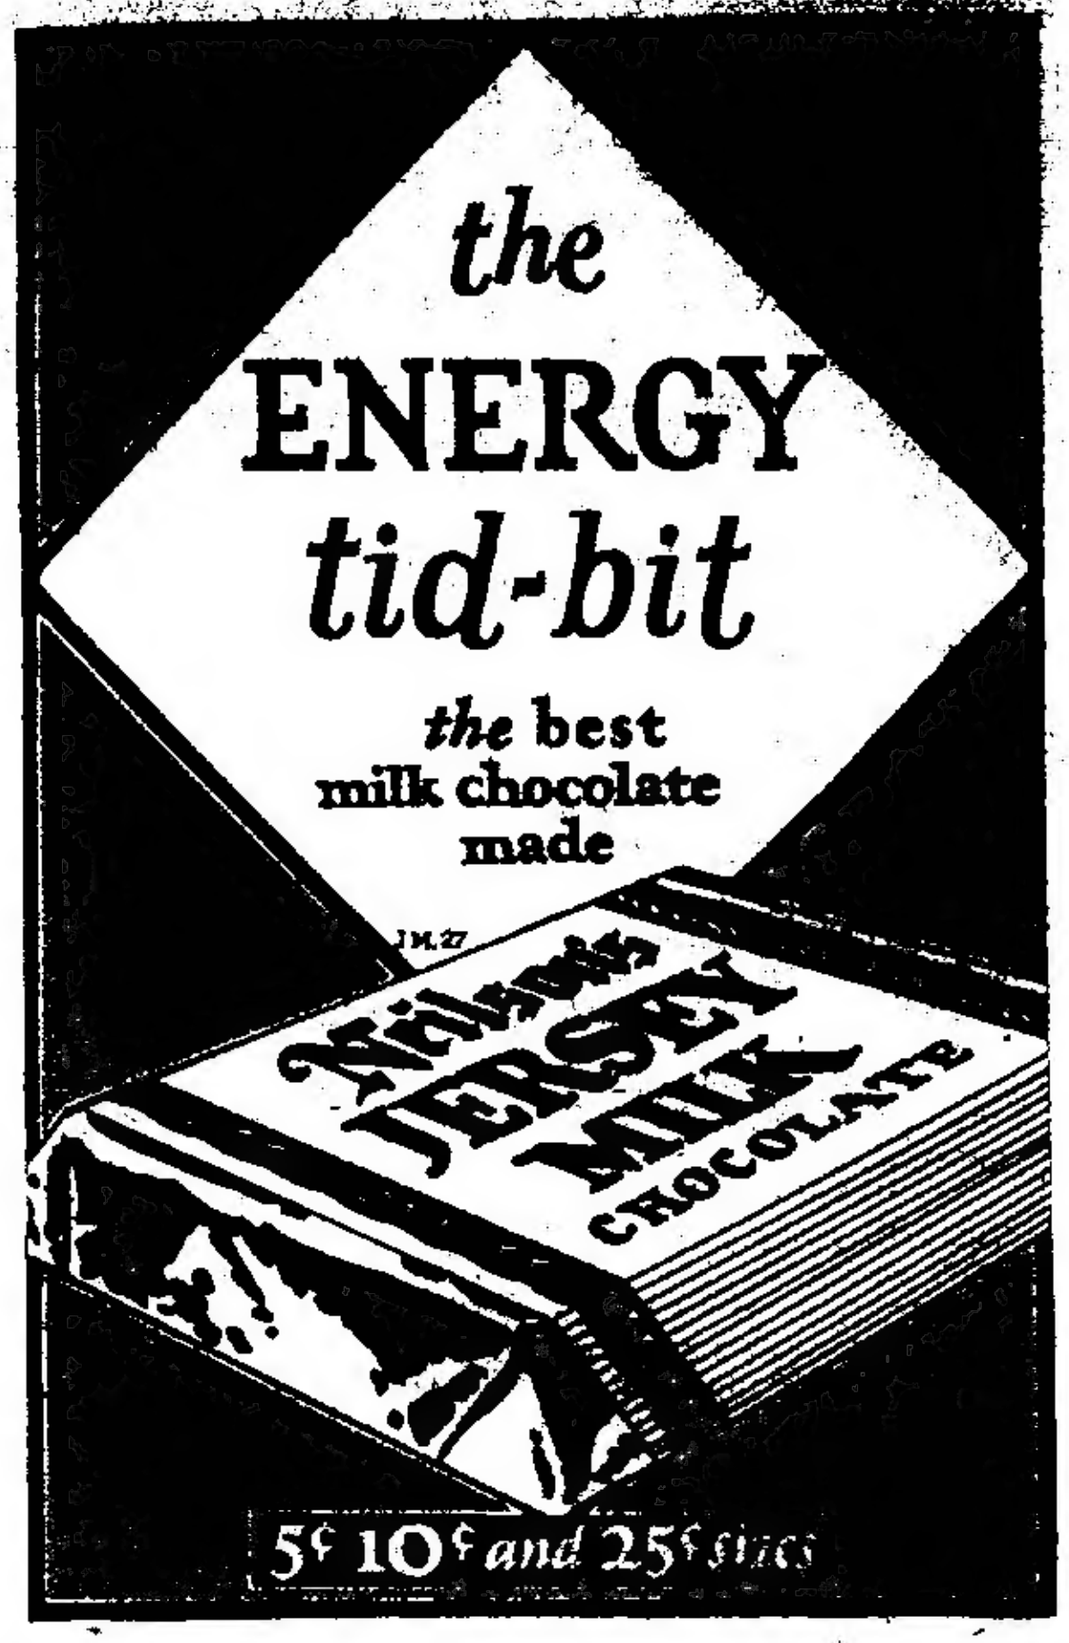
Nathan Straus reached his eightieth birthday Tuesday, and from the far corners of the earth men paid tribute to this great Jew and humanitarian. We, too, like to be in step and add a few words of appreciation to the most beloved Jew. And we can do it best by quoting at length from "Dollars Only" by Edward Bok. "I do not think that the business acumen of a man like Nathan Straus will be particularly glorified when he passes away. What his commentators will remember is his wonderful work for unfortunate humanity which he has done, and, happily, is still doing: a work which has been distinguished because of the presence of the quality of self-help to those for whom its benefits are intended to reach. No single man has, perhaps, done more in the last forty years for the better health of children, and for those men and women who were unemployed or homeless, than has Mr. Straus. Yet he never gave his milk, coal, or lodging quarters. His invariable rule has been that folk, however poor, should either pay for what they got or earn it. How many lives of children have been saved from tuberculosis by his crusade against bacteria-infected milk, no records can or will show. It has been given to few men to be spared to see the results of his marvelous work, as has been the privilege of Nathan Straus. No man of his generation has been more successful in pointing the way to the truest service to a larger number of people; to help people to help themselves, and this will be the capstone of his monument." By the way, if you are flushed with money and absorbed in the accumulation of "dollars only," read Edward Bok's book and see what blessings you can bring to humanity by the proper use of your dollars. What an inspiration is Nathan Straus to all of us! He certainly is not interested in dollars only. He is the Grand Old Man of American Israel. On this his eightieth birthday, we say "Ad Meo V'esrim Shona."

OUR OPPORTUNITY

I doubt very much whether at any previous period in our history since the rise of Christianity did we Jews have a better chance to explain our position to the world than at this hour of human progress. Especially in North America there is a disturbance among the thinking classes of Christians. They are searching for truth. They want to know the Jew—his faith—his philosophy of life. We Jews dare not lose the opportunity of informing Christians the truths concerning Jew and Judaism. Let us do away with the "Goy-Fear" and speak courageously pertaining our ideals and hopes. What an opportunity!

MASONRY, JUDAISM AND RADIO

The annual Masonic divine service under the auspices of the Corinthian Lodge, No. 62, A.F. & A.M., Q.R., was held at Temple Emanu-El last Sunday. The entire service was broadcasted. And here we jot down a few lines of our sermon to the brethren: "How good and how pleasant it is for Brethren to dwell together in unity." Throughout history we find two attitudes struggling against each other. These are Unity versus Uniformity. Uniformity is that attitude which demands standardization, agreement. It is that which insists on perfect conformity to fixed opinions. It is that very process which destroys individuality and cramps personality. Uniformity means the reduction of every mind to a common dead level. Unity, on the other hand, harmonizes. Unity gives room to variety and diversity and does away with monotony. Unity recognizes "differences" not only as something inevitable, but something that is beneficent and divine. Nature, history and experiences of life detest uniformity. Nature demands a departure from the homogeneous in every sphere and insists upon the heterogeneous as a condition of development. Place two grains of sand under a microscope and you will conclude that no two grains of sand, though found on the same seashore, and washed by the very same sea, are exactly alike. History brings testimony that whenever men strove to establish uniformity—bigotry and persecution followed. Reflect upon Spain at the close of the fifteenth century. What the world needs is not Uniformity, but spiritual Unity. Nations and Religions form a great symphony. Each must play a particular instrument and bring about world unity and harmony. A Masonic Service—in which Jew and Christian meet in divine worship—is a great step toward spiritual unity.



Montreal Jews Lose School Case Appeal

Verdict of Supreme Court Affirmed with Variations—Jews Cannot Be Appointed Members of Protestant School Commissions

In the appeal of the Montreal Jews to the Privy Council from a decision of the Supreme Court of Canada regarding the rights of Jews in the Protestant and other schools of the Province of Quebec the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council gave judgment affirming, with variations, the Supreme Court ruling. The appellants must pay the costs of the Board of Protestant School Commissioners, Montreal, in connection with the appeal.

The appeal was against the judgment given by the Supreme Court of Canada upholding the Quebec Court of Appeals in its ruling that persons of the Jewish faith could not be appointed to the Board of Protestant School Commissioners; that the board was not obliged to appoint Jewish teachers in its schools; and that the Quebec provincial Legislature could not pass legislation providing that persons professing the Jewish religion be appointed to the board.

The Quebec Government was interested in the appeal as the question of the constitutionality of the provincial school laws had been raised.

The problem which their Lordships of the Judicial Committee had to solve was admittedly complex as it involved the question as to whether the Quebec Legislature had the exclusive right of making laws relating to education in the Province of Quebec, and whether its rights under the British North America Act remained unqualified.

To the question: "Is the statute of the Province of Quebec of 1903 beyond the province's power or authority," their Lordships' answered as follows:

No, except so far as it would enable persons professing the Jewish religion to be appointed to the Board of Protestant School Commissioners in Quebec or Montreal, or to any Protestant board of examiners, or take part with Protestants in the establishment of dissentient schools outside of those cities, and except so far as it would confer the right of attendance at dissentient schools outside the cities of Quebec and Montreal upon persons of a religious faith different from that of the dissentient majority."

To the question: "Can persons of the Jewish religion be appointed to the Protestant Board of School Commissioners in the City of Montreal?" their Lordships' replied thus:

"On the construction of the statute 'Yes'."

The Privy Council agreed with the answers returned by the Supreme Court of Canada on the following questions:

Question 2 (section B). "Is the Protestant Board of School Commissioners of the City of Montreal obliged to appoint Jewish [illegible] their schools should they be attended by children professing the Jewish religion?" —Answer: "No."

Question 3. "Can the provincial Legislature pass legislation providing that persons professing the Jewish religion, be appointed (a) To the Protestant Board of School Commissioners of the City of Montreal; (b) to the Protestant committee of Public Instruction, or (c) as advisory member to these bodies." Answers. To part A: "No." To part B: "This committee is the creature to post union legislation and, therefore, its personnel is subject to provincial legislative control; but as it is presently constituted only Protestants are eligible for appointment to it." To part C: "This question can be answered only when the powers and duties of such advisory members shall have been defined."

Question 4. "Can the provincial Legislature pass legislation obliging the Board of School Commissioners of the City of Montreal to appoint teachers professing the Jewish religion in their schools should they be attended by children professing the Jewish religion?" Answer: "No."

Question 5. "Can the provincial Legislature pass legislation providing for the appointment of persons professing the Jewish religion on the proposed Metropolitan Finance Commission, outlined in the project submitted by Messrs. Hirsch and Cohen?" Answer: "No."

Question 7. "Assuming the act of 1903 to be constitutional have the Protestants the right, under the present state of the Quebec law, to allow children professing the Jewish religion to attend the schools; (a) as a matter of grace; (b) as a matter of right; (c) can the province force the Portestants to accept children professing the Jewish religion under such conditions?" Answer: "It is impossible to answer this question categorically and difficult to answer it intelligently. We deal with it as follows: We assume that the question to be answered, having regard to the law of the Province of Quebec bearing on educational matters, insofar as such law is valid, exclusive of the act of 1903, and that Protestants in the questions mean the Protestant Board of School Commissioners of the City of Montreal and the trustees of the Protestant dissentient schools in rural municipalities. To part A the answer is: Yes. To part B, further assuming that the enquiry intended is whether Jewish children have the right to attend Protestant schools with a correlative obligation on the part of the Board of Protestant School Commissioners and trustees to admit children professing the Jewish religion to the schools respectively, under their control and to provide therein for their education the answer is: In the City of Montrealt Yes. In the rural municipalities: No. Answer to part C: The words 'under such conditions are quite unintelligible. It is impossible to discern what conditions are meant to be imparted. Eliminating them from the question the answer is: In the City of Montreal: Yes. In the rural municipalities: No.'"

To the question; "Can the provincial Legislature pass legislation to establish separate schools for persons who are neither Catholics nor Protestants?" the Judicial Committee delivers the following pronouncement:

"This question is framed in very general terms, their Lordships from time to time have expressed their reluctance to give an opinion upon abstract hypothetical questions which have not yet arisen in concrete form, but the question now under consideration bears so close a relation to those which have been already dealt with that it would be difficult to arrive at conclusions as to those other questions without forming an opinion upon the subject matter of the sixth question. Their Lordships think it is right to say that upon this question they are in accord with the opinion expressed by the Supreme Court of Canada.

"While section 93 of the act of 1867, protects every right or privilege with respect to denominational schools which any class of persons may have had by law at the time of the union of the provinces. It does not purport to stereotype the educational system of the province as then existing. On the contrary, it expressly authorizes the provincial Legislature to make laws with regard to education subject only to the provisions of the section in question, and it is difficult to see how the Legislature can effectively exercise the power entrusted to it unless it is to have a large measure of freedom to meet new circumstances and needs as they arise.

"The statute protects the rights which at the time of union belonged to the Roman Catholic population as a class, as well as those belonging to the Protestant population as a class; but to treat the members of both denominations, who substantially made up the whole population of the Province of Quebec at the time of union, as forming together a 'class of persons' with a right to object to the establishment of any school not under Christian control would be to give a meaning to the statute which its words will not bear.

"It appears to their Lordships that it would be possible to frame legislation for establishing separate schools for non-Christians without infringing the rights of the two Christian communities in their denominational schools, and they agree with the Supreme Court that legislation confined within those lines would be valid.

"It is hardly necessary to add that this board, like the Supreme Court, have dealt with all the questions as questions of law, and have in no way concerned themselves with any question of policy. Their Lordships are of the opinion that the decisions of the Supreme Court should be affirmed with the variations above set out.

"The appellants should pay the costs of the Board of Protestant School Commissioners and Joseph Schubert. The Protestant Committee of the Council of Public Instruction of Quebec (interveners in the appeal) and the Attorney-General of Quebec should bear their own costs. The £150 deposited by the Protestant Board of School Commissioners should be returned to them."

In an earlier portion of the judgment, their Lordships of the Judicial Committee register the opinion that the contention of the appellants' counsel, Sir John Simon, that the word "Protestant" in the statutes must be construed as meaning non-Catholic, and so including Jews, is quite untenable; and also that the Protestant community, although divided for some purposes into different denominations, is itself a denomination and capable of being regarded as a "class of persons" within the meaning of section 93 of the act.

Touching on the matter of the enlargement of the boundaries of Montreal and Quebec city since the union of the provinces, their Lordships remark that it is clear that no post-union annexation of territory could deprive any class or person of protection under the section.

The argument before the Judicial Committee in the appeal of the Montreal Jews from a decision of the Supreme Court of Canada regarding the rights of Jews in the Protestant and other schools of the Province of Quebec took place at the end of November and the beginning of December last, continuing several days. Sir John Simon, K.C., London (now chairman of the statutory committee, appointed to inquire into questions of reform in India), was chief counsel for the appellants, and Eugene Lafleur was chief counsel for the Protestant committee of public instruction of Quebec, opposing the appeal.

Sir John Simon, in his argument, said it was fallacious to assert that Protestants, in the sense of a collection of people holding the Christian belief were a denomination. Protestantism, he argued, was comprised of a whole series of denominations. He contended that denominational schools did not mean the same thing as non-Roman Catholic schools, and Protestantism, as it was understood in the sense of the Reformation, was not a denomination.

Make Ironing Easier!

Any user of a Westinghouse Electric Iron will confirm the fact that it lightens the work of ironing.

Try it yourself.

Notice that your hand does not tire so quickly —that the right heat is there all the time. Its beveled edge is a big help.

These things are worth having in an electric iron.

Westinghouse have distributed its weight evenly, provided larger heating surface that maintains a steadier heat and furnished a cool handle comfortable to either hand. The slight angle of this handle avoids wrist strain.

You can buy this modern electric iron, so handsomely finished, at any good electrical store.

Lord Darling asked if Sir John would say that in this issue, Jews were Protestants.

Sir John answered, "Yes, my Lord."

Sir John Simon contended that the term "Protestant" embraced Jews in the matter under appeal. He claimed that the phrase "dissentients" applied to members of any denomination differing from Roman Catholicism. He submitted that members of the Jewish faith were entitled to the same position in educational affairs as any one else.

Mr. Lafleur, in his argument, urged that the act of 1903 prejudicially affected the Protestant rights which had been ensured to Lower Canada at the time of the union of the provinces—the right to full and exclusive management of the schools—and the appointment of Jewish members of the Protestant Board of School Commissioners would infringe this right.

Sir John Simon, counsel for the appellants, represented Michael Hirsch and S. W. Cohen, two members of the Jewish section of Montreal, who were named to study school matters in Montreal. Joseph Schubert, mentioned in the judicial committee's judgment, is Alderman Schubert, who did not agree with Messrs. Hirsch and Cohen in their battle for the rights of Jews in connection with the Board of Protestant School Commissioners, but favoured separate schools for Jews.

Chas. Lanctot, K.C., assistant attorney-general of the Province of Quebec, received a cable, February 2, from the law firm of Blake and Redden, agents of the province in London, in regard to the Protestant-Jewish school question.

This message reads: "Jewish judgment Supreme Court confirmed with variations. Act 1903 construed as enabling Jews be appointed commissioners and examiners but held intra vires except so far as it authorizes such appointments or authorizes Jews to take part in schools denominational except in schools in rural areas. Fact of annexation not dealt with. Appellants pay costs of both boards and Schubert."

In view of the brevity of the message, and even the ambiguity, the Quebec authorities refused to comment. Mr. Lanctot explained that the text of the judgment will reach him in about ten or twelve days.

Mr. Lanctot represented the province before the Privy Council, Sir John Simon appeared for Michael Hirsch and S. W. Cohen, two members of the Jewish section of the commission named to study school matters on the Island of Montreal. The Schubert referred to is Alderman Jos. Schubert, who did not agree with Messrs. Hirsch and Cohen, and favours separate schools for Jews. Sir John Simon was supported by Canadian Counsel, such as Louis St. Laurent, K.C., of Quebec, and Peter Bercovitch, K.C. Eugene Lafleur, K.C., represented the Protestant committee of the Council of Public Instruction; George A. Campbell, K.C., represented the Montreal Protestant School Commission, and Antonio Perrault, K.C., represented the Montreal Catholic School Commission.

PROBE INTO KILLING OF YARMULNIK IS ASKED BY LABOUR

Heated debates led the Montreal Trade and Labour Council to ask for an official investigation into the killing of Sidney Yarmulnik, Jewish hat designer, who was shot and killed by Constable Bolduc outside a St. Catherine Street cafe following the recent St. Denis Street bank hold-up.

President Foster jumped into the debate with the remark that it was important that the council's intention should not be misinterpreted. The labour organization had always taken the part of the police, even at the risk of criticism, but also it must take the part of the citizens generally, even if it hurt some people's feelings.

"We cannot," he said, "overlook the fact that a free and innocent man has been killed. The victim is dead. We cannot help but feel that elsewhere

From Rabbi Louis I. Newman, of Congregation Emanu-El, San Francisco: "Permit me to say that I consider your viewpoint eminently correct with regard to your article on the motion picture 'The King of Kings.' Despite acceptance of revision by the Bnai Brith, those who favour withdrawal have by no means ceased their efforts. Just as soon as we can see the revised version, we shall know whether it is satisfactory. If not, no effort will be spared to bring about withdrawal.

"You may be interested to know that I have written to the Children's Magazine, concerning their recommendation of the picture for children. The enclosed is a copy of the letter I have sent them:

"'I will send you information as soon as we have it concerning the revised version of the film. If, as I say, the revision is unsatisfactory, may we not look to you for co-operation in promoting public sentiment on behalf of the immediate and unconditional withdrawal of the picture from circulation?'"

From the Rabbi to Children's Magazine:

"The picture, which I have seen twice, seems to me to be highly detrimental in its effect upon children's thinking and emotions. The character of Jesus is portrayed inadequately. He is made out to be a magician performing miraculous cures after the manner of a juggler. From the standpoint of thinking people, such a portrayal of Jesus in reactionary and medieval terms hurts the cause of religion. Moreover, the crucifixion of Jesus is depicted in such a brutal way that the influence upon the minds of children cannot be healthful. The lashings, the torture, the crucifixion have a sadistic quality that is decidedly dangerous. May I not, therefore, ask you to remove from the list of motion picture plays you recommend the name of 'The King of Kings'?

"Perhaps it has come to your notice that Mr. DeMille has been compelled by the force of public opinion to agree not to show this picture in countries where it might excite racial prejudice. Moreover, he has been forced to revise the picture in many respects. However, it seems likely that he will withdraw his film from circulation, because, whatever the revisions he attempt, its menace to religious peace and the portrayal of Judaism and Christianity alike will continue."

There is a man by the name of Louis Rosenberg, an attorney of Brooklyn, who is going entirely unnoticed by the English-Jewish papers, although he has just invented a noiseless ashcan. It is conservative to say that no monument will ever be erected to him for this reason nor medal struck nor banquets planned. It takes a showier accomplishment to get people to eat in the interest of a hero or to subscribe for a memorial to him. An ashcan may be a homely, unromantic subject, but the man who can make it noiseless should be one of the outstanding Jews in the country and the hall of fame should be widened so that Rosenberg can get in along with Rabbi Stephen Wise, Louis Marshall and the other perennial candidates.

It is a dismal week when orators cannot find some "crying need" to point to and they never include "noise" as a pet subject, although it is one of the recognized miseries of the blah-blah age. But the sight of a person who loves to bang out preventable noises must be one of the comforts of those who believe in a hereafter with really suitable punishments for misdemeanours overlooked in this life. There is the man who turns his radio out the window so that he can hear it while mowing the lawn in summer, optimist that he is, in the assurance that every one else will do no less than love it! There is the young son of the family who drives his car hell-bent up the street just to attract attention. There is the genial host who has to walk his garrulous, drunken friends up and down the street at three a.m. before he can send them home with safety. There is the lazy, insensitive nuisance who awakens the neighbourhood any hour of the night rather than get out of his car and ring the door-bell of the single family he wants to communicate with. There are the young folks and the young old folks who can't be satisfied to say their good-byes within doors, but must shout them back and forth even when leaving a party in an apartment building. There is the person who can't close a door without slamming it. And there are others who rob people of rest and sleep and together they all afford arguments not only for capital punishment, but for the rack and screw. It is too much to expect that the inventor of the noiseless ashcan can effect anything that will abolish other preventable noises, but perhaps his ashcan may become a symbol and a reminder of how much pleasanter and more livable this setting might be if quieter. All hail to this Rosenberg and may sweet peace, literally, be with him!

PROBE INTO KILLING

there was carelessness; just who it was who was responsible we are not prepared to say, for we have not full possession of the facts. But we feel there are responsible officers who owe it to citizens to make a complete and profound investigation into the circumstances of this particular case, so that we may know whether there was here a certain over-zealousness, the lack of that essential for every officer—the ability to keep his head under fire."

It had been said, Mr. Foster continued, that police must be considered more or less of the military category; but he was sure that if a soldier had killed a civilian in such circumstances, there would have been a court martial, and if the soldier were a non-com., and if he were found incompetent, he would have lost his stripes. The big point was not to accuse the constable in the case; the point was that there should be a full investigation so that the responsibility might be placed, and citizens might know that those who had sworn to protect their lives and property would carry out their duties in proper manner.

J. T. Foster and Delegate Mathieu, one the president, the other a member of the executive committee of the council, were the combatants in the debate. Mr. Foster held that civilians' rights must be protected, and defended the proposition that a [illegible] be held into Bolduc's competency to be on the detective force. Delegate Mathieu wondered why the council was so much interested in Yarmulnik. "Is it because he was a foreigner?" he asked, at the same time noting that the council had showed no great concern over the death of policemen killed on duty. The nationality question slid around the debate from time to time, but the whole matter was finally accepted, most of the delegates holding that the council's motion was not an accusation of the constable, but merely a demand for an investigation into his qualifications.

Delegate Cuppello, who moved adoption of the motion, thought it a "scandalous shame" that an innocent man should be shot down and killed in the manner in which Yarmulnik had died, and saw in the circumstances a chance for bandits to copy the mode d'emploi of the detectives in the case and to stage a hold-up with the pretension that they were agents of the police. Delegate Arbogast took a more cynical view. "Apparently," he said, "it is more serious to criticize the police force than to kill a man in the manner in which this citizen was killed." He cited the cases of the former members of the force, Bouchard and Lajoie, both of whom, he said, had been dismissed because of things they had said that were interpreted as uncomplimentary to their own organization. They had been dismissed. But nothing was being done in the case of Bolduc. That was a difference of which delegates should take notice.

Delegate Mathieu disagreed. He might agree that the method of recruiting the police of Montreal, even of training them, was not ideal. "But," he proceeded, "I disagree when we are asked to pass a resolution by which we condemn a man to be hanged. The only result of the motion would be that a man would be deprived of his employment and his family would suffer." He pointed out that the coroner and a jury had exonerated Bolduc, but here was the Labour Council setting itself up, with no official data in hand, to require an investigation. The motion was carried with Delegate Mathieu dissenting.

A farewell banquet in honour of Max Adelman and his daughter, Clara, of Saskatoon, Sask., was held Wednesday, February 1. Mr. Adelman, one of the oldest Jewish pioneers in western Canada, is leaving for Palestine where he intends investing capital in orange plantation. The following were present: Mr. and Mrs. I. Smith, Mr. and Mrs. J. Kronick, Mr. and Mrs. B. Laster, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Lyons, Winnipeg; Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Bernstein, Dan S. Denberg, Miss Bettie Cosovitz, H. L. Sivitz, B. Beader, Max Rosen, J. Donnenfield, M. Murawtchick, A. Cash, Mr. and Mrs. N. Wilson, S. Himel, Mrs. Reifstein, J. Brill, S. Rogul, D. Goldberg, M. Hartzman, M. Lichtenberg, Mr. and Mrs. D. Abramovitz, Mr. and Mrs. H. Lazaresco, Ed. Lazaresco, Miss Lucy Lazaresco, A. Reinhorn, M. Clavir. D. Abramovitz was toastmaster. H. Lazaresco introduced the guest of honour and reviewed his activities as Zionist for over twenty-five years. Miss Clara Adelman replied to the toasts. Mr. Adelman emphasized that he knew that there was a temporary depression in Palestine now, but said that did not discourage him; on the contrary it hastened completion of his plans as he hopes to contribute towards alleviation of the present crisis. He sketched a plan from a purely practical and business point of view under which any one having a capital of $25,000 for investment in Palestine can expect good return. With this money, he said, one can acquire 50,000 dunams of land and cultivate it with the help of Jewish labour as an orange plantation. At the end of seven years, if one is to sell the improved land, it will yield one hundred per cent. profit on his investment. Should one continue to cultivate it, at the end of such period it will yield annually $10,000 net profit. This, he said, was the utmost that can be expected from the most successful business in Canada. He developed a scheme for the organization of a limited company with a quarter of a million capital stock for the building of a cold storage plant in Palestine to facilitate the preservation of fruits during the warm season so as to create a local market yielding considerably higher profit than the export trade, thus repaying the investment in the cold storage plant. Friends in Saskatoon and Winnipeg offered to place in his hands sums from $10,000 to $25,000 for investment according as he sees fit, but he did not wish to assume responsibility until he arrives at his destination. Mr. Adelman left Toronto on Thursday night.

PURITY FLOUR

RECIPE FOR KINDLECH

Into a large bowl sift one pound of Purity Flour. Make a depression in the centre and pour into it one yeast cake dissolved in a little milk. Let this remain until the milk and yeast have risen a little. Stir in the surrounding flour together with three well-beaten eggs, a quarter of a pound of butter, six ounces of sugar, pinch of salt and two cups of lukewarm milk. Knead the whole into a smooth dough. Roll this out very lightly on a well-floured board, brush over with a feather dipped in melted butter and strew thickly with chopped almonds, sultanas and currants. Next fold over about three fingers' width of dough. Brush the upper surface of this fold with melted butter and strew with mixed fruit and almonds. Fold over again and repeat the operation until the whole of the dough is folded up in layer somewhat resembling a flattened roley poley pudding. Brush the top well with another feather dipped in beaten egg and cut the whole into thick slices or fingers. Let them stand for half an hour and then bake for an hour in a rather slow oven.

Jewish Education Most Important Problem To-Day!

LOUIS MARSHALL says:

(At the Sixth Annual Dinner of the Jewish Education Association, New York, December 18, 1927.)

"There is no use in mincing words. If we, the Jewish people, ever come to the stage when we fail to respond to the call of Jewish education, we will have done what our enemies never succeeded in doing, what the Romans and Greeks and all the nations of the earth were unable to do. We will have destroyed ourselves. We will have written our own death-warrant."

"I think this is 'par excellence' the greatest problem of the Jews of to-day."

"Are we ready to forget that great heritage? Are we prepared to let the children coming after us forget it? Will we suffer the children of the poor to forget it?"

"If I thought that were the case, I would say harsher things about the Jews than the worst of 'Reshoyim' ever applied to them."

"Are we, the people of the Book, to be the only ones who do not read that Book, whose children are to know nothing of it, and are to sink into the darkness of ignorance, and are to be blind to the enlightenment which we have brought to the world?"

LOEW'S

Each week Loew's vaudeville shows build to stronger entertainment. Other attractions may beckon, but the wise theatre patron returns to Loew's to enjoy the acme of modern stage and screen fare.

This week an even greater triumph has been achieved by the popular house in its ability to present in person Emile Boreo, one of the most distinguished stars of the European singing stage. M. Boreo comes to Toronto for the first time in vaudeville but is already a celebrity on this side of the Atlantic, having been a very valuable member of the "Chauve Souris." M. Boreo is the possessor of a very fine voice and he is also an actor and pantomimist of exceptional skill. He will give a number of characterizations.

The Biggest Word in Buying!

"VALUE"

The most important word in the car-buyer's dictionary is VALUE. Value means "what you get for the price you pay" —in appearance—in performance—in comfort—in dependability—in quality—in service.

Weigh all these considerations carefully and you will understand why people who know VALUE buy these General Motors' cars—CHEVROLET, OLDSMOBILE, OAKLAND —and why so many of them buy from A. D. GORRIE & CO. with its city-wide sales and service organization.

conceived of the emancipation of woman and that that opinion of the Talmud need not be binding upon the present generation. The whole status of woman in the world had been revolutionized and religion had to take cognizance of that revolution. Following the discussion, the conference with few dissenting votes endorsed a resolution permitting the admission of women to the rabbinate.

We were happy that our first vote at a rabbinical conference was cast in favour of that resolution. Sex should not be a qualification or disqualification for any profession. If women have been admitted to the legal, medical and engineering professions, why not to the ministry? The qualification for admission to the ministry or rabbinate should be character, personality and education, and whoever possesses these qualities and has the desire to consecrate his or her life to religious work should be permitted to receive ordination. We shall await with interest the action of the United Church with respect to the ordination of women, and believe that it will be along the lines of liberalism.

The New York offices of the Zion War Orphanage of Palestine have just received a highly favourable report concerning conditions of that institution. The report comes through an impartial rabbinical student named Arye Geiger. He contends—and quotes authoritative opinion—that the Zion War Orphanage is the outstanding non-discriminating institution in Palestine. Those who in America extend aid to this institution are hereby thanked.

Thelma Goldfarb, daughter of Rabbi and Mrs. Israel Goldfarb, has prepared for publication a collection of the new Palestinian songs. The volume, which will appear shortly, will contain fifty selections with full piano accompaniment.

Miss Frances Rohrer
